Family member went into the ER sick. After a week, they ended up with a staph infection and shortly after that he died. Looking at the medical records, this infection wasn't there when my loved one was admitted to the ER. Only after a week of being here at Gottlieb. The nurses had little compassion for our grieving family and we had to complain in order to allow us to facetime with our loved one. Not a single doctor would facetime with us to introduce themselves or speak with our family about our options. Had an outside autopsy done and our family member had giant open wounds in places he shouldn't have. I wish the ambulance would have taken him to any other hospital because he would still be alive.
